

Too Much Stuff? Store It At My Place!!!

Cleaner, Drier, And More Secure.

How To Choose The Right Size Storage Lockup Room For Your Stuff.

We have always informed our customers about the wide range of Storage Room sizes to choose from at our place. There is no point in having to buy more storage space than needed – that is wasteful. However, we also accept that selecting the best size can be challenging – how to select the right size for the amount of stuff you want to store.

We have studied self-storage websites from around the world and a common issue for their customers too is how to select the right size. They offer calculators and give sizes (3x4, or 2x3 which is a footprint size and means very little to most people), and.....but their customers are still left confused.

One way we have tried to simplify this process is to compare each Storage Room's size against the size of a single-car garage. It is not that we are offering garages, but most people can visualise in their mind that size. As an example, after a customer explains to us they propose to store household furniture from a one-bedroom apartment we might suggest a Storage Room the size of half a single car garage. Most people can relatively easily have a mental picture of this.

Furniture removal firms calculate differently again – they do it in cubic meters (m³). They do this because this is how they usually charge their truck space out by. Generally, when a customer of ours is employing a furniture removal firm that firm will be able to tell the customer how many cubic meters of space is going to be used on the truck. If we are given that measurement, we can instantly match up the best size Storage Room for you.

Two Risk-Free Ways To Remove The Guesswork.

1. The first option is for you to come and have a look and discuss with us. Then it is easier to select the best size you feel will work for you.
2. The second option is a great offer: Risk-Free Storage-Room Size Selection.
You give us a complete list of items you want to store, and we will select a Storage Room size we think is best suited for your stuff. If we select one that is too small (because price is based on size, and we have 27 different sizes) we will provide you up to a 10m/3 overflow Storage Room free. What this means to you is you will never get caught short at our place by a dodgy company out to make a quick buck. This offer is conditional on all available space in the selected Storage Room being fully filled first.
